Green Guru Award

Sourabh Deb

Tripura

As a Professor at the Tripura University, arguably the only University in India where Forestry and Biodiversity is taught as a subject in Masters programme you as a teacher of this discipline, guide your students, who are mostly from rural communities, on the value of solution based forestry and biodiversity research in tune with the emerging global concerns on the degradation of our Nature Capital and our Natural Assets. With a special focus towards sensitizing your students towards nature and developing a genuine love and appreciation for the natural world, you are moulding future Green leaders to contribute to community and biodiversity conservation. As a firm believer that research based teaching approach should be related to the economic upliftment of the students, the research outcome of your work is ultimately reaching to the users' like, forest dwellers, farmers/orchardists, State Forest and other allied departments and different voluntary organization.

For this, we honour you
